Pupils should be taught about: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • changes within living memory. Where appropriate, these should be used to reveal aspects of change in national life; • events beyond living memory that are significant nationally or globally [for example the Great Fire of London and events commemorated through festivals or anniversaries]; • the lives of significant individuals in the past who have contributed to national and international achievements. Some should be used to compare aspects of life in different periods [for example Elizabeth I and Queen Victoria, Christopher Columbus and Neil Armstrong, William Caxton and Tim Berners-Lee, Rosa Parks and Emily Davison, Mary Seacole and/or Florence Nightingale and Edith Cavell]; • significant historical events, people and places in their own locality.

- changes in Britain from the Stone Age to the Iron Age;
- the Roman Empire and its impact on Britain;
- Britain's settlement by Anglo-Saxons and Scots;
- the Viking and Anglo-Saxon struggle for the Kingdom of England to the time of Edward the Confessor;
- a local history study;
- a study of an aspect or theme in British history that extends pupils' chronological knowledge beyond 1066;

Intent

The curriculum is coherently planned and sequenced to help ensure progressive coverage of the skills and concepts required in the National Curriculum and aims to develop historical skills and concepts, which are transferable to whatever historical period is being studied and will equip children for future learning. These key historical skills and concepts, which are revisited throughout different topics, are: Historical Interpretations; Historical Investigations; Chronological Understanding; Knowledge and Understanding of Events, People and Changes in the Past; Presenting, Organising and Communicating.

The coverage of recent history in KS1 enables children to acquire an understanding of time, events and people in their memory and their parents' and grandparents' memories. For KS1, the curriculum can be covered chronologically in reverse to allow a full opportunity for children to really grasp the difficult concept of the passing of time.

The intent in KS2 is that children can work in chronological order, from ancient history e.g. 'Ancient Egypt' and then progress onto more modern history such as 'The Industrial Revolution' as part of a four year rolling programme. Children also start to understand how some historical events occurred concurrently in different locations, e.g. 'Ancient Egypt' and 'The Stone Age'.

Implementation

In order for children to know more and remember more in each area of history studied, prior learning is always considered and opportunities for revision of facts and historical understanding is built into lessons. This allows revision to become part of good practice and helps build a depth to children's historical understanding. Through revisiting and consolidating skills, children build on prior knowledge alongside introducing new skills and challenge. The revision and introduction of key vocabulary is built into each lesson. This vocabulary is then included in display materials and additional resources to ensure that children are allowed opportunities to repeat and revise this knowledge. Through our curriculum, we intend to inspire pupils and practitioners to develop a love of history and see how it has shaped the world they live in.

Impact

The impact will be seen across the school with an increase in the profile of history. The learning environment across the school will reflect this, with historical technical vocabulary displayed, spoken and used by learners. Whole-school and parental engagement will be improved through the use of history-specific home learning tasks and opportunities suggested in lessons and overviews for wider learning. We want to ensure that history is enjoyed by pupils across school, encouraging them to continue building on historical knowledge and understanding, now and in the future. Impact can also be measured through questioning in lessons, child-led assessment such as success criteria grids and KWL grids and summative assessments targeting next steps in learning.
